

was closed, we managed to acquire a number of original tools and moulds that allowed us to resume the production of these practical and gorgeous items. Today, after a long and intensive search for suitable manufacturers, we have finally added some of the original items to our product range again, and others will follow. All casting, enamelling and assembly work is done in Germany. Our products are of exceptional quality, particularly with respect to their moulding.

and their weight speaks volumes for their quality. As the enamelling process is carried out manually and not by a machine, it is possible that the enamel is applied onto the unfinished casting with a varying thickness that may cause surfaces to be slightly uneven. Some tiny black spots or pores may be visible. They are, however, part of the typical appearance of enamelled goods. They do not influence the corrosion protection.

Enamelled cast iron goods. Hand-Crafted.

German company W. Ischebeck & Co. Eisengießerei und Emailierwerk was founded in Gevelsberg in 1910. At the time, the manufacturer offered a wide range of enamelled cast iron items for bathroom and kitchen. Each item came with the manufacturer's mark "PORZELLAN EMAILLE SCHNEE-WEISS" (enamelled porcelain snow-white). As a result of operational transfers, the production of certain goods was continued by Hildebrand, a company based in Wetter an der Ruhr in Germany. When the factory in Wetter

Decorative and Protective. Enamel Coating.

Steel and cast iron products often receive an enamel coating, which is a decorative as well as protective layer. During this process, raw materials that are also used to produce porcelain and glass are melted onto steel resp. cast iron surfaces at 800 – 950 °C. Cast iron treated that way basically gets a glass coating, which makes it highly resistant to light and weather conditions – in other words – protected from corrosion. Our range of products includes cast iron fittings with white or black enamelled surfaces as well as strong and solid hooks and mounting brackets,

Mounting instruction: We do not supply mounting material. Enamelled items should only be mounted by hand, not by means of an electric screwdriver as this may damage the enamel coating.

Advantages of enamelled goods:

- They are resistance against light, heat, lyes, wear and odours.
- Hygienically sensitive areas have always been the primary areas of application of enamelled goods. Their smooth, glass-like surfaces widely prevent the accumulation of bacteria and other organisms.

- Enamelled surfaces are free from harmful substances such as solvents or toxic heavy metals.
- Their surface allows for easy cleaning and care. Enamelled goods are free from static charge and therefore do not attract dust.
- These items are recyclable.
